A little Vocabulary Engliſh and Latine,

For the uſe of little Children, that begin to learn the Latine Tongue,

BY C H: Hoo[illegible] Arts, and Teacher of a priv[illegible] School in Goldſmiths-[illegible]ndon.

Cum intelligitur quid ſignificetur, minùs laborandum eſt de nomine. Cic. Topica.

LONDON,
Printed for Joſhua Kirton, and are to be ſold at his Shop at the ſign of the Kings Arms in Pauls Church-yard, 1657.

An Advertisement touching this Book.

THis little Vocabulary is an extract only of such words as I used to Note in the larger, to be as certain Way-marks unto Childrens memories, for the better learning of the rest; and to save my own labour, and the Childrens Books somwhat, I have caused them to be here printed by themselves, as having their proper end; which is, to teach little ones how to call those things in Latin, which are every way obvious unto them, and whose names they know in English. And this we may observe to be the first step towards the gaining of any language: what farther use may be made of it, I leave to his discretion that will teach it; only let me tell the new beginner, that for his help in pronouncing Latine words, I have marked the syllable thus (') wherein he must lift up the sound above the rest: and to hint him a little towards his Grammar, I have caused the ending of the Genitive Case of every word to be set down, and the letter denoting its Gender, viz. m. the Masculine, f. the Fæminine, n. the Neuter. c.2. the Common of two, and d. g. the Doubtfull Gender.

And now that I have digged deep enough (as I conceive) for the laying of a sure foundation of the Latine Tongue in a Child that can (though but indifferently) read English, I will hasten what I can (at by-times) in works that come neerer to perfection. Which that I may cheerfully effect, God graciously vouchsafe his assistance as hitherto.
